BIOGRAPHICAL NOTE

Robert Duke Graham was born on 8 September 1900 in Greensboro, North Carolina. He worked in a Durham, North Carolina hotel as a youth before moving to Kentucky with the Lowry Hotel Company, where he was desk clerk and then assistant manager of Frankfort's New Capitol Hotel. In 1926, Graham became manager of the Helm Hotel in Bowling Green, Kentucky after the Lampkin Hotel Company acquired its lease. In 1931, he moved to the Owen Hotel in Horse Cave, Kentucky, but soon returned to the Helm Hotel; during World War II, he also served briefly as personnel director of Ken-Rad Tube and Lamp Company in Bowling Green. Graham's business interests eventually extended to ownership of several hotels in other Kentucky cities.

On 20 August 1937, Graham married Edith Brown (1904-1976), the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Hamilton Brown. He was elected to the Bowling Green City Council the same year, but declined the office in order to join the Board of Public Works, where he served for 14 years. Graham also accepted other civic posts and became active in Democratic politics. In 1938, Governor "Happy" Chandler appointed him as an employer representative to the Minimum Wage Board, and in September 1941 he was made Democratic Election Commissioner for Warren County. His other appointments included Chairman of the Warren County Democratic Committee, member of the Kentucky State Police Personnel Board, and member of the building board for the Warren County Tuberculosis Hospital. One of the founders of Fidelity Savings and Loan, Graham served as a director from 1966-1980.

On 26 May 1959, Graham won the Democratic nomination for mayor of Bowling Green. On 4 August 1959, however, Clifton W. "Cliff" Lampkin, the incumbent, died suddenly, and Graham was appointed to fill the unexpired five-month portion of his term. In November 1959, Graham, who campaigned on a platform of opposition to increased city taxes, especially a payroll or occupational levy, was elected to a full four-year term as mayor. By the end of his term (31 December 1963), Graham had been recognized for three principal achievements: urban renewal projects in the Jonesville and Parker-Bennett neighborhoods; expanded street lighting; and systematized refuse collection using a sanitary landfill disposal system. He had also overseen pay increases for city employees, street repavings, and an expansion of Fairview

Cemetery. Graham also worked in statewide Democratic races, and on 8 October 1960 hosted a visit to Bowling Green by Democratic presidential nominee John F. Kennedy.

In 1967, Graham was again elected Bowling Green's mayor, serving from 1 January 1968 until 31 December 1971. The first day of Graham's term was also the effective date of a new form of municipal government; on 8 November 1966, voters had approved the elimination of the city's bicameral governing body (the Board of Councilmen and Board of Aldermen) and its replacement with a commission-manager form of government consisting of a mayor and a board of commissioners directing the activities of a city manager. Graham's second stint as mayor was marked with greater turmoil, as participants debated their roles under this new form of government. A notable achievement, however, was in 1969, when the city received a grant from the Department of Housing and Urban Development under the Model Cities Program for improvements such as housing, sewers, transportation, poverty and unemployment reduction, and the establishment of a regional medical center. One of the more visible acts of Graham's second administration was the 1970 painting of the Reservoir Hill water tower in patriotic red, white and blue colors.

Robert Duke Graham died in Bowling Green on 16 January 1984 and was buried in Fairview Cemetery.

COLLECTION NOTE

This collection contains primarily correspondence and scrapbooks relating to the public career of Robert D. Graham, with emphasis on his terms as mayor of Bowling Green, Kentucky. Some personal letters and papers of Graham and his wife Edith are included. Photographs in the collection have been transferred to the Kentucky Library, but some photographs remain pasted into the scrapbooks (Boxes 2-8).

Box 1 contains primarily correspondence, political material, and miscellaneous papers of Robert D. Graham. Graham's correspondence from 1930-1959 (Folder 2) includes a letter providing information on his early hotel career, and recommendation letters from prominent citizens of Bowling Green in support of his effort to enlist in some branch of the service during World War II. Also included are congratulatory letters following his victory in the 1959 Democratic mayoral primary, a few letters from constituents outlining civic concerns, and campaign material. Graham's correspondence from 1960-1972 (Folder 3) includes a telegram from John F. Kennedy acknowledging his support in the 1960 presidential campaign; a few personal postcards and letters from constituents; letters from various Kentucky politicians, including Congressman William Natcher, who refers to Louisville's "pouting" over not being given a Model Cities grant ahead of Bowling Green; letters regarding a grant for sewer system planning from the Department of Housing and Urban Development; and a letter from a soldier objecting to the 1970 painting of the Reservoir Hill water tower in the national colors, and Graham's response defending the decision. Letters to Edith B. Graham (Folder 4) include personal notes and cards from young members of her family and from her husband. Clippings (Folder 5) relate to Graham's public career and include a feature on the Grahams' home. Election and campaign material includes advertisements and vote counts for Graham (Folder 6) and for other local mayoral candidates (Folder 7). Other political material includes campaign material and primary election reports for Kentucky state offices (Folders 8, 10), miscellaneous material relating to the Kentucky Democratic Party, including the Democratic Woman's Club

(Folder 9), and to national Democratic election campaigns (Folder 11). Church materials, mostly programs and newsletters (Folder 12), other miscellaneous programs and keepsakes (Folders 13, 14), and oversized materials, mostly political campaign and election materials (Folder 15) make up the remainder of this box.

Boxes 2-8 contain scrapbooks which mostly document Robert D. Graham's public career, but also include some personal items. The scrapbooks include many clippings, usually from the (Bowling Green) Park City Daily News or the (Louisville) Courier-Journal; letters and cards; photographs; event programs; certificates; and political campaign materials. Most of the clippings concern Graham's mayoral campaigns and municipal issues with which he was involved, special or ceremonial occasions, and state or national Democratic politics. Also of interest in the scrapbooks are: a letter of greeting to Mrs. Graham from former president Lyndon B. Johnson (Box 2, p. 31); an autographed photo of burlesque performer Sandy O'Hara (Box 2, p. 125); photographs of the 1967 opening of Bowling Green's Western Towers student apartments (Box 3, p. 92); a typescripted article about Graham entitled "Candid of a Candidate" (Box 3, p. 133); a personal reflection on John F. Kennedy by the pastor of Bowling Green's First Baptist Church dated 24 November 1963 (Box 4, p. 115); clippings detailing John F. Kennedy's visit to Bowling Green on 8 October 1960, including a slip of paper with an address, written by Kennedy, for sending a recipe for Kentucky ham to Mrs. Kennedy (Box 5, pp. 50-55, 255); a program for the Bowling Green Civil War Centennial ceremonies on 27-30 June 1962 (Box 5, p. 185); a letter of thanks from Muriel (Mrs. Hubert H.) Humphrey after her visit to Bowling Green in 1968 (Box 6, p. 11); tickets to the 1969 Kentucky Derby (Box 6, p. 109); a copy of Graham's 1969 letter to President Richard Nixon asking for a commitment to rebuilding cities comparable to President Kennedy's commitment to the space program (Box 6, p. 183; see also Box 1, Folder 3 for a reply from the Vice-President's office); and some personal items such as a wedding announcement, cards, family snapshots and several "vacation newsletters" from Morgantown, Kentucky native and Arkansas resident S. E. Tanner (Box 8).

Box 9 contains certificates and plaques of appointment or awards presented to Robert D. Graham in connection with his political and civic service.
